

Discover the "glass ceiling" you perceive:

Negative feelings and judgments create distrust and get in the way of healthy communication that is essential to generative leadership. The challenge is ...whose?

"There is a universal cross gender truth I found in hundreds of workshops over 15 years ...no one else causes me to be angry, to be frustrated... the great news is I control my own reactions! My reactions are a result of MY judgments and MY judgments are tied directly to MY beliefs & some of my beliefs turned out to be nonsense!"

Testimonials

"I've tried to describe this workshop to fellow women executives, and all that comes out of my mouth are words like shocking and dramatic. This certainly doesn't fit any convention I've seen in seminars, but then again sometimes that's what is needed to break glass ceilings! Men trust me more now and women act more respectfully, that was a significant bonus!
Dana Hanson, B.Eng, MBA

"This workshop was nothing like I could ever have imagined and what I realized was how much I allowed fear and my arrogant judgments of men to sneak out. Men didn't trust me."
Susan Krans, Lawyer and Entrepreneur

"I believed that my education and corporate experience, especially in HR Training, was more than enough ... and yet I continued to perceive a bias against me, and I thought it was because I was a woman. What a shock it was to me to discover that it was all about my trust and my judgments of men"

Joan Harker, MBA Human Resources Training

Conflict Resolution For Women

Shatter the glass ceiling by understanding conflict, communication and leadership in an experiential challenge!

A one and one half day journey into why you make the choices you do, and how to move forward in leadership in your life. In one day you will:

Learn 8 ways to create trust and focus at the beginning of a meeting that we call container building. Women have to take extra special care to create ground rules and agreements that will create a "game space" that everyone agrees to.

Witness the importance of clear communication, and methods to improve clarity.

"The willingness of women to communicate their unique power and message in a way that engenders trust and assurance in others is directly proportional to their success. Women don't have to communicate like men, simply make a choice to clearly make known their whole message."

More great awareness!

Get powerful feedback on how you showed up from other professional women and the facilitators... we call this "cut and bless"

Using Emotional Intelligence Leadership techniques changes the way you see and interact in the world.

"A surprisingly simple truth. Time spent up front will save time, misunderstanding and will build trust more and more each time"

Learn to recognise powerfully how you choose to see events a certain way and then create what you are comfortable with, to feel safe.

"This was a real eye-opener for me. What I believed was that I did not have a choice about many happenings in my life, when really I did! And as I learned to communicate that, others followed suit and took responsibility with inspired creativity!"

FAIR WARNING

We recognize this workshop is not for every woman, at the same time we have significant waiting lists. Our maximum class size is 25. KNOW that you may be pushed to limits that you never imagined and that you MUST be able to park political correctness and common standards of verbal decency and fairness outside the room to do this work. Unlike our other workshops, we do NOT offer even a partial refund if you leave.

A Challenge for Modern Women

This is not your average training. This is a wild ride into the world of dealing with conflict and communication powerfully, with focus and purpose. You will produce results so men and women in any situation will trust and respect you and you will feel both heard, honored and strong. There are books and tapes and beliefs and psycho-sexual and psycho-social analytical theory of how women deal with conflict, disagreement AND agreement. We've read them and reading how to do it and why it came to be like that, whatever... we just do it!

There is a secret about men in business that may come as a surprise; just as many men have difficulty with conflict as women, the only difference is men have been culturized not to show it.

So how does a woman show up powerfully without being branded a "bitch" or a "ball-buster"? What's the secret to walking in strong confident female energy?

This workshop is an experiential, cellular level process. No classroom teaching, no notes, no bullshit.

20- 25 women, two very strong experienced male facilitators. No holds barred either way. We can take it and we can help you find the genuine and clear power that will launch you to the next level of trust with men and women, in business and in your home.

One evening and one full day that will change your life forever. INVEST IN YOURSELF.
